LONDON GOSSIP.

Newsy Items—The Reason Prince George Has Been Sent Cruising.

LONDON, June 16.—Emperor William is still suffering seriously from his recent accident. He underwent an examination on Friday for internal injuries. The Emperor declares that it is his intention to give up driving for the present.

Parnell has selected Rochefort Maguire, a Protestant and prince of Parnellites, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Jas. Odey, member for North Donnegal. Maguire is a graduate of Oxford and has taken a deep interest in Canadian politics, being formally associated with Cecil Rhodes who, some years ago, made a contribution of £1000 to the Irish cause.

The reason Prince George has been sent cruising on board the Thrush is with the hope of curing him of his love for an Earl's handsome daughter, whom it is considered prudent he should not marry. The delicate health of his elder brother, Albert Victor, renders it possible he may succeed to the English throne.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, has had a series of fainting fits which necessitated constant attendance upon her by her mother, the Princess of Wales.

Baby Buggies, the finest and largest assortment in the city at low prices, from $9.50 up, at J. Sehl's 64 Government street.

Every subscriber to "The Dominion Illustrated," Canada's pictorial weekly, is insured for $500 in case of death by accident. Yearly subscription $4. 1w

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

THE MILK AND WATER POLICY IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Premier Whiteway Says Matters Must be Settled—War or Annexation—The Reason Prince George Was Sent Cruising—A Woman at the Bottom of It as Usual.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich, June 16.—Miss Mary Holland was arrested and taken before the United States Commissioner to-day for refusing to answer the census taker, and driving him from her house with an axe. When arraigned, she admitted the charge, but said that he insulted her by asking her if her husband was a black, a homeless child, a pauper, a prisoner or a convict, and she would not stand that from any man. She was held to answer before the grand jury.

The Benwell Tragedy.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., June 16.—Chief of Police Wills of Woodstock, Ontario, is in the city searching for evidence that might have a bearing upon the trial of Burchell, the Englishman who is now held at Woodstock for the murder of his associate Benwell. The chief found and examined a large trunk at the Erie depot at Tonawanda, which came there checked to Erie just before Benwell is believed to have been murdered. The trunk had been at Tonawanda until a few days ago when it was taken away by a stranger who presented a check for it. Chief Wills believes that the trunk was designed to enclose Burchell's victim and was to have been sent over Niagara Falls. The chief also reported that an important witness who had been thought to have disappeared, has been located, and will testify at Burchell's trial in October.

St. Paul's in Danger.

LONDON, June 16.—Great fears are entertained for the safety of St. Paul's cathedral, in consequence of the new underground railway to be constructed within a few hundred yards of the building. Christopher Wren wrote a memorandum to the effect that the foundations were not so good as he could wish, consequently it is feared that the vibration by the trains will endanger the dome, even if the preliminary work does not imperil the entire fabric.

"John" Abducts a White Girl.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Sam Kee, a Chinese laundryman, twenty years of age, of Providence, R. I., was arraigned in the police court to-day, charged with having abducted Annie Lawrence, aged fifteen, who was employed in the Works manufactory in that city. The pair arrived in this city by the Providence boat yesterday morning, and hired a cab driver to take them to a house in Mott street. The driver being suspicious of the Chinaman, drove the couple to the police station, where they were placed under arrest. The Chinaman has been held in $10,000 bail.

Railway Accident.

BUTTE, Mon., June 16.—A north bound freight train on the Utah and Northern Railroad met with an accident last evening ten miles north of Heron, in which W. C. Curtis brakeman, was killed, and two other trainmen sustained slight injuries. Five hundred sheep were killed outright and two or three hundred more crippled and subsequently killed by butchers.

The Memorial Abandoned.

LONDON, June 16.—The Tories have abandoned the proposed memorial in favor of the Autumn Session of Parliament. This action is taken in consequence of the threatened resignation of W. H. Smith, the Government leader in the House of Commons.

The Scourge Spreading.

MADRID, June 16.—Doctor Candela, the famous expert and specialist, who made an investigation into the subject pronounced the disease which has appeared in the province of Valencia to certainly be the dreaded Asiatic cholera. At Quebla de Regat and vicinity, ninety-one deaths from cholera have already occurred and the scourge is spreading.

Stanley and his Bride Elect.

LONDON, June 16.—Lady Ashburton has tendered the use of Metchel Court, her Ladyship's Hampshire place as the residence for the occasion. Henry M. Stanley and bride elect have accepted the invitation and will pass the honeymoon there.

Released from Prison.

SING SING, N. Y., June 16.—Jno. O'Neil, one of the boodle Aldermen of 1884, and commonly known as Honest John O'Neil, because he did not accept the bribe offered him, was released from prison at 8.30 this morning. He took the 8.35 train for New York.

Damp Gas Explosion.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 16.—Damp gas exploded at one o'clock this afternoon on Hill farm, near Dunbar. Of sixty-five men in the pit 15 were taken out badly injured, the others it is supposed were suffocated.

Troops for Africa.

LONDON, June 16.—Three hundred Soudanese, and three hundred Indian troops under command of an English officer, will proceed to Mombasa where they will be placed in the service of the British East Africa Company.

No Treaties with Germany.

LONDON, June 16.—African advices are to the effect that Bishop Tucker with a caravan will leave Soadan for Uganda in July. It is also stated that no treaties were concluded by the German explorer, Dr. Peters, with chief Mwanga.

Another Railway Accident.

PADUCAH, Kentucky, June 16.—A freight train on the Newport News and Mississippi Valley R. R. was derailed by striking a cow at Kerrville, Tenn., at 7 o'clock this morning. The engine and ten cars were badly wrecked. Engineer Gwinn Perkins of this city and an unknown negro tramp were crushed to death. Rush Marshall, of Memphis, the fireman, was fatally injured.

A Wrecked Steamer.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., June 16.—The wreck is reported here, off Willoughby Cape, of the steamer Towmanga, announced from Port Pirrie, Australia, for this place. Some of the crew of the steamer are missing. The scene of the disaster is on the eastern point of Kangaroo Island.

Sentence Reversed.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Jas. Hyde who shot and killed Wm. Turnbull a fellow ticket speculator in front of the 14th street theater several months ago was arrested, this time on an indictment for murder found by the grand jury and arraigned before Judge Martin in the general sessions is committed to Tombs without bail. When first arrested for the offence he was paroled in the custody of counsel on evidence that Turnbull assaulted him. Justice White latterly discharged him on examination, Turnbull's friends now claim that they have evidence that Hyde did not receive the provocation he stated, and at their instance the present indictment was found.

Sale of Thoroughbreds.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The sale of a hundred colts and fillies the property of J. B. Haggin of California began this morning. A brown colt, the half brother of Cruiser, by Sir Madrid out of Cansima Canssi, March 11, 1889, went to J. A. and H. Morris of West Chester, for $4,300. A chestnut colt, foaled April 26, 1889, by Sir Madrid, out of Chimes, went to Marcus Daly of Montana, for $1,900. A number of others were sold at prices ranging from $500 to $1,350.

Dock Laborers Strike.

LONDON, June 16—Thirteen thousand dock laborers struck at Swansea, Wales. Shipping operations with the exception of the coal traffic is at a standstill as a consequence.

Good Prospects for Heavy Crops.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16.—Another large rain fall, followed by warm weather has had a further beneficial effect on the crops throughout Manitoba and the western territories. The prospects for heavy crops have never been more favorable than at the present moment.

WIFE OF THE SHAH.

How the Doctors Salted Her Husband for Medical Advice.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Some interesting particulars are floating around in the club gossip concerning the fifty-year old wife of the Shah of Persia, who recently visited Paris to undergo an operation for defective eyesight. The Parisian experts that she consulted appear to have made considerable inroads on the consort's purse, two surgeons alone presenting a bill for $9,000 for a single consultation. According to one of the interpreters to the imperial party, the Shah would not permit his escort journey to Europe to be operated upon until he had consulted the royal astrologers. These officials gave a favorable decision, and also prophesyed that the operation would be entirely successful. The latter prophecy has not been fulfilled, and it is a question whether, after his consort has returned home, the Shah will not take steps toward declaring the places of the astrologers vacant by the kind of civil service rules that prevail in Persia, viz., decapitation.

THE NEW U. S. NAVY.

A Good Deal of Guessing Going on as to Who Will Get the Contracts.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—James W. Scott, of the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, the competitor of Cramps for the contract to build the armored ships was at the navy department again this morning and had another conference with Secretary Tracy in regard to the details of the specifications of the department plans as against those of the bidders. After the interview Scott said the Secretary had made rapid progress with the work of examining the plans of the two bidders and he thought that the contract would be awarded early next week, probably next Monday. The question which the Secretary has not decided, said Mr. Scott, is as to whether or not, the plans of the bidders are too radical as against those of the department. I believe the secretary will eventually arrive at the conclusion that bidders' plans are not only feasible but liberal, and that vessels, if completed under those plans, will be as good as if constructed under the plans of the department. Both sides apparently have an even chance, and it is lottery to say who will win the prize, the east or the west.

THE NEW CUSTOMS DISTRICT.

Mr. Wilson's Eloquent Extremity Carries the Bill Through.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 12.—The Senate bill reorganizing and creating the customs district of Washington was passed by the House to-night, after a very importunate plea on the part of the representative of that State. It makes Port Townsend the port, and Seattle, Tacoma and Port Angeles subports. It will allow the registration of vessels at these places, and save hundreds of miles of transportation for a good deal of the commerce of Seattle and Tacoma. When the bill came up Finley of Kentucky objected, and the bill was withdrawn. Then Mr. Wilson resurrected it. He pleaded with Mr. Finley to withdraw the objection. The bill carried no appropriation, and was of vital importance to the State. "I have telegrams by the bushel from boards of trade and private citizens urging me to secure the passage of the bill," said Wilson. "I have been working all winter in its interests, and I am the only representative of this State on this floor. If the measure is killed, it will, in the language of the West, put me into the 'nine-hole.'" Everybody roared, and Finley said "I withdraw the objection, then." The bill passed in short order.

FAREWELL SERMON.

REV. J. E. STARR PREACHES HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

A Very Large Congregation Were Present Last Night to Hear Rev. Mr. Starr's Farewell Sermon—An Able Discourse—Standing Room at a Premium.

A church packed to the doors, extending even to the doorsteps and on to the street, and filled to their utmost capacity, every possible inch of space occupied within every part of the sacred edifice, in fact such a sea of bright, intelligent, expectant faces as is seldom seen anywhere, was the sight the Rev. J. E. Starr's eyes lighted upon as he ascended the platform of the Pandora street Methodist church, to address his people for the last time last evening. If, though unassuming, as all know the reverend gentleman to be, he should for a moment feel a sense of gratification at what plainly attested his popularity no one could have found fault with him. His popularity was the logical sequence of his own work and bearing toward the people. For three years he remained steadily at his post, working night and day, giving literal run to his heart-winning qualities. Some 300 people have determined under his ministry to turn a new leaf and do the right come what may. When some three years ago he arrived here and donned his armor for the fight, great were the expectations of what he might accomplish, his reputation having preceeded him. Yesterday, as he laid his armor down—that is, so far as his labors in this city are concerned—those who had the greatest expectations felt they had not been disappointed. It is not many who have the felicity of sustaining and keeping up public applause and esteem, whilst engaged at the same time in "shooting error as it flies" in the way Rev. Mr. Starr did during his pastorate in this city. We congratulate him upon being able to lay down his armor with a sense of having given so much satisfaction to all who were in any way brought into contact with him.

Taking for his text "Remember that by the space of three years, etc.," Acts 20, 31, he said that if Paul was not a Methodist he was an itinerant preacher. In leaving his present pastorate like Paul he simply wanted to remind them of some things he had been endeavoring to accomplish. In the first place, to have a church making a business of religion. Religion, he said, was a business. The chief employment of Christ was making a business of religion—I must be about my Father's business. The reason why so many individuals and churches failed in religion was the lack of business methods. Coming late to church their business place, and being absent during God's business hours—the hours for the prayer meeting and Sabbath services. Want of enterprise in our churches was also a cause of failure. You could no more expect to succeed at farming ploughing with Elisha's crooked stick than you could make a church successful by sticking to old methods simply because they are old. He also tried to make it a liberal church. There was a gospel of money as well as a Gospel of Salvation. The only time Jesus Christ ever resorted to physical force was when He saw some people making money out of the church and giving nothing towards its maintenance! The church had raised in cash during his three years of pastorate $30,000.

He has also tried to make it cheerful. Some churches were like places where they exhibit Egyptian mummies, the people sitting in their pews rigid and stiff and dead. He wanted nothing to do with a religion made up of sanctimoniousness five parts, censoriousness four parts and the rest whine. Besides this, he had tried to make it a soul saving church, hundreds of people having found it the gateway of the kingdom of God. Taking leave of his congregation, he said that with a temperament like his he knew he must have made mistakes, but he had received at the hands of his people nothing but kindness, and though he did not say farewell he wished them a kind, affectionate goodby.

WAR OR ANNEXATION

Premier Whitney of Newfoundland Says May Result from the French Outrages.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The Journal's St. Johns, N.F., special says. England must protect our rights or (as subsequently shown in this case) it means annexation to the United States. The speaker was Sir Whiteway, the premier of the Newfoundland government, who had consented to give his views to the correspondents on the French shore difficulty. He said, "A government that would submit to the British policy of procrastination and would grant French pretensions to sovereignty in these waters would not have an hour's life. We have sent a strong protest to the Queen against the action of the Imperial Government in permitting France to commit repeated outrages on the Newfoundland fishermen, and demand and must obtain a right to legislate for the French shore the same as for other parts of the colony. England's milk and water policy cannot longer be carried out, for we will take the law in our own hands and by the enforcement of our bait act retaliate on the French fleet. Armed cruisers will be immediately ordered out for this purpose and at least we can cripple the French fishermen. England dare not ignore the situation longer for there are four courses open: The purchase of the French rights, arbitration, war or annexation.

One of these must be pursued for we have suffered enough injustice and neglect in the past and this time our demands are emphatic as to the ultimate result of the difficulty. I think purchase and arbitration are out of the question, war is possible, but not probable. "It must be annexation then," said the correspondent, "that only remains."

"Annexation!" said Premier Whiteway smiled, "well, I suppose, but we must first see how England will answer our demand."

ELECTION RETURNS.

Robson at Foot of List in Cariboo—Lillooet and Kootenay.

The following are the returns from Cariboo and Lillooet, received by telegraph this afternoon:

LILLOOET.

D. A. Stoddart, Opposition	119
A. W. Smith, Government	89
W. Morrison, Government	80

The two first named are elected, the returns being final.

CARIBOO.

As far as heard from up to to-day, the vote stands:

Mason	167
Rogers	146
Robson	143
Pinchbeck	119

WEST KOOTENAY.

We have heard from Nelson and Sproat's Landing. The figures are as follows: Nelson—Kellie, 9; Brown, 1; Farwell, 22. Sproat's Landing—Kellie, 3; Brown, 3; Farwell, 4; Haskins, 1. Added to returns already published, the candidates stand:

James M. Kellie (Ind)	43
W. M. Brown (Opp)	20
J. W. Haskins (Govt)	24
A. S. Farwell (Govt)	34

As there are still three places to hear from, this election is still in doubt. The chances are that either Kellie or Farwell is elected.

ELECTION ECHOES.

The Result of the Contest Remains Unchanged.

Complete returns from each district are now pretty well all in.

The returns from the Islands District show Mr. Booth to have been elected by a majority of 27 votes over Mr. Robertson. The vote cast was as follows.

Booth	67
Robertson	40
Ford	2

The latest from Lillooet gives Stoddart 97 votes, Smith 87, and Morrison 48. Mr. Stoddart is a pronounced Oppositionist.

It has been claimed by the Government that Mayor Brown of Westminster is a supporter of the Government on everything but the Redistribution question. In thanking the electors for their support, on Friday night he said: "We are now leading the van of the fight against class legislation and monopolies. The day is coming when no man who does not stand up for popular rights and fair legislation, need stand before the Mainland constituencies for election. I have had broken the bone and sinew of New Westminster at my back and they have recorded no uncertain protest against unjust legislation.

Among the most amusing attempts at illegal voting in this city on Friday, was that made by some men who claimed to be merchants, but who when they received the ballot papers could not read the names on them.

The Opposition have hardly yet been able to account for their striking victory. The almost solid support of the best class of people—neither the la-de-dahs nor the low down toughs—were the men who did it. It was suggested also that Mr. Davie's "foreigners" may have had a hand in it.

On Saturday evening the Opposition candidates were serenaded at the residence of Dr. Milne, Douglas street, by the Queen City brass band and fife and drum band. An impromptu garden party was held and those present invited to partake of light liquid refreshments. The candidates being called for were loudly cheered, responses being made by Dr. Milne, Mayor Grant and Mr. Frank Richards. All three agreed that the people had shown a confidence in them which they had scarcely expected, and that the campaign had been conducted in a most friendly and harmonious manner.

After the bands left Dr. Milne's they serenaded the Colonist and TIMES offices. Cheers were proposed by the crowd, for Mr. Higgins at the Colonist office, and for the TIMES at the TIMES office.

Mr. Carey received 116 plumpers in Victoria district, Mr. Helgesen 89 in Esquimalt. With such support in a very uneven contest they were evidently as strong personally as the "great guns" who opposed them.

The candidates who appear to have lost their deposits so far are five in number, which will increase the revenue by $1000. The districts in which the candidates were running were Vancouver, Westminster district and the Islands district.

Mr. Law, who is believed to have defeated Col. Baker in Kootenay, is a young man, being only about 30 years of age and of good ability.

Officers Installed.

The following officers of Young Men's Institute No. 183 were installed at Nanaimo on Sunday evening by District Deputy Grand President T. Deary of Institute No. 85: President, Alex. McNeil; first vice-president, J. A. Callaghan; second vice-president, Malcolm McTaggart; recording and corresponding secretary, Alex. McNeil; treasurer, Father Nelson; marshal, M. McDonald; inside sentinel, [illegible]; executive committee, D. D. Donaghy, P. Carey, J. J. Carron, M. Quinn and A. McKinnon.

News Notes Collected From the Mountain District Press.

From the Kamloops Sentinel.]

Instructing the young Siwash idea in the ways of the paleface is being satisfactorily proceeded with at the industrial school. Mr. Morrison, the school teacher, is developing their intellectual faculties, and Superintendent Hagan attends to their education in the agricultural department.

Mr. F. J. Fulton, in charge of Mr. E. M. N. Woods' law office at Kamloops, successfully passed his examination as a Solicitor before Mr. Justice Walkem last week.

Engineer A. Mowat, who was recently injured in an accident, is able to move about quite briskly now, and has discarded his crutches. He expects to mount the cab in a week or two.

Some little diversion was afforded at Donald in a 100 yard race for a purse of $10, given by Mr. G. Sutherland and run the latter part of last week, the winner to compete at Golden. Mr. F. Calder, after a hot contest, took first place, followed by Messrs. Blair, Balacs and Morrison in their respective order.

Appearances at Vernon indicate a progressive spirit amongst stock breeders. Within the last two weeks there have been six imported horses in the valley.

The Vernon boys are aching for a go at the Enderby boys on the diamond, and have challenged them to a game on July 1st, the Vernonites to take all south of the head of the lake, and they to chose from there to Sicamous; place of meeting to be settled by agreement.

A committee has been organized at Donald, consisting of Messrs. G. Sutherland, Capt. Mathewson, J. C. Steen, treasurer, and F. Calder, secretary, to arrange for the holding of sports on Dominion Day, including horse and boat racing, baseball, cricket and other popular amusements. The committee have met with considerable success, and expect to be in a position to offer upwards of $400 in prizes. Some $30 of this amount has already been subscribed, and a successful day is assured.

From the Revelstoke Star.]

Mr. Harold Redgrave has accepted the position of Provincial Constable and Mining Recorder in place of J. Kirkup, and has entered on the discharge of his duties.

A large scow was launched on Tuesday for use by the Steamboat Company in transporting locomotives and railroad iron to Sproat.

Dominion Day will be celebrated by an excursion on the steamer Lytton or Kootenai.

More rich discoveries are reported from the great Cœur d'Alene district, and great excitement prevails among mining men. When the reports were first received they were looked upon as exaggerated, but later and more reliable reports show that the discoveries promise to eclipse anything heard of in years.

George Carter, the original discoverer of the celebrated Poorman mine, located a claim on Bear creek, just above Murray, early this week. Doc Clinton sent down three quarts of samples by Mr. Meceham, to be assayed. The assay showed $25,000 per ton. So far no work of any consequence has been done on the claim, but it is said that the mine will pan out a great deal of just such ore as has been assayed.

Eight miles above Carter's strike another gold claim has been located which is said to be equally rich.

Col. Wallace, who came down Friday, says that three weeks ago a tramp walked into Bear Creek with his blankets, and went prospecting. He discovered gold, and sold out his claim for $20,000. The colonel says that another claim was opened up which showed gold clinging together in large quantities. This was at a place called Fitchburgh.

These discoveries have all been made in the creek above Murray. A large number of prospectors have left and are having for the scene of the latest gold excitement.

NELSON NOTES.

A printing press and its adjuncts were amongst the cargo of yesterday's steamer. Messrs. Houston, Ink & Allen were the consignees. Mr. Houston expects to have the first issue of the Kootenay Miner out by Thursday week.

The Eagle Creeks Mining Co., J. C. Davenport & Co., have been operating their crusher ten stamp mill, with capacity for twenty tons per day, for about one week, and it works without a jar. They have 1200 tons of ore on the dump.

Simon Ray and another French Canadian are working between Eagle and '49 creek, a gold ledge. They had run 65 feet on the vein 18 inches wide, but 45 feet lower the vein was five feet in width. The last assay was $704 gold besides some silver.

The Ward Bros. have staked an immense deposit of magnetic iron ore close by the railroad line, which gives a return of $9 in gold.

The Halls are running a drift at the lower level to drain their mine, and were employing all their forces at this and in clearing a wide space around their buildings to save them from forest fires.

Buchanan's sawmill is actively at work supplying lumber at Nelson. A large raft had arrived and was being delivered, and buildings were going up in all direction.

Dr. Hendrix is at the present time engaged prospecting a wagon road from the Tough Nut to Lookout creek, thence to connect with the projected one from the Hall mine on to Nelson. He intends next year to put up at the Gates a smelter complete in every way and capable of handling 400 tons of ore a day. The machinery for the proposed building will be carried on sleighs this winter and thus be in readiness to be put up early immediately upon the completion of the structure next summer.

Mr. Rosser, of the Revelstoke smelter, left on the last boat to visit the different mining camps in the Kootenay country, to effect arrangements for the transmission of ore to this town for smelting purposes. It is understood that special inducements will be offered to the firm controlling the Poor Man to have its concentrates forwarded as soon as possible.

The Hall Bros. have a gang of men at work opening up a new tunnel at their mine. The first assay of the ore struck gave no less than $300 to the ton.

The Spokane Ferry, which was repaired only some two weeks ago, again met with an accident; the occupants of which barely escaped with their lives. It seems that the scow had just left the landing, when the connecting cable snapped in twain and away she went, propelled by the strong current, in the direction of rapids. She was happily arrested in her mad and fatal career by a providential snag, which coming in contact with the vessel, gave sufficient time for the passengers to jump on dry land. Jack Evans, who had charge of the ferry, stuck nobly to his post, and endeavored to save the craft by throwing a rope over the obstacle. In this his efforts proved futile, and she drifted out into the middle of the Kootenay, when Jack, considering it sheer madness to remain longer on board, hastily disrobed, and jumping into the swift stream struck out for the shore, which he reached after much difficulty. The passengers among whom were Messrs. Haskins, Brown and Kellie, were afterwards transferred from the other side in a row boat and proceeded on their journey to Sproat well impressed with the narrowness of the escape.

CANADIAN NEWS.

Items of Interest Received by Telegraph from Different Points.

At the Toronto Anglican Synod Rev. Dr. Langtry gave notice of motion to petition the Ontario Government for legislation that will secure to Protestant denominations in Ontario the same privileges as to separate schools as Roman Catholics enjoy.

At a meeting of the general conference at Hamilton the temperance committee condemned the smoking of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes on the ground that it led to drunkenness and pauperism. This raised a slight hubbub and the remark was modified by general consent.

The public works department calls for tenders for the construction of a new postoffice at Vancouver. The appropriation for the year is $30,000, but it is expected the total cost will be about $70,000.

The General Assembly of the Church of Scotland convened at Ottawa on Wednesday in Bank street Presbyterian church. Rev. Principal Grant delivered the usual address, and in doing so touched on political matters, referring to the case of Rykert, whose conduct he described as "discreditable, corrupt and scandalous." Rev. Dr. Lang, of Dundas, was elected moderator.

Government Telegraphs.

The Canadian Government telegraphic system is to be much extended this year, particularly in the eastern provinces. Superintendent Gisborne says this summer a cable of twenty-five miles will be laid from the Island of Anticosti to the north shore of the St. Lawrence by which the Government will secure direct communication with that island independently. A nineteen mile cable will also be laid connecting St. Paul's island with Sydney, Cape Breton. In the territories a telephone line is to be constructed near Prince Albert; while in British Columbia 290 miles of telegraph wire from Ashcroft through the Cariboo country to Barkerville is to be repaired. Matters are at a standstill in regard to the direct Canadian cable with Great Britain.

Church Union.

The Toronto Diocesan Synod met on Wednesday. Among the communications received was one from the Bishop of Toronto, which conveyed the information that the synods of the various dioceses in British North America would be requested to elect two delegates each to attend the conference with a joint committee and such representatives as may be appointed by the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land from dioceses composing that province, to be held in Winnipeg August 15, for the purpose of considering and framing a scheme for a union of the church of British North America, to be submitted to the synod of every diocese for its adoption prior to the next meeting of the Provincial Synod of 1892.

Ancient Literary Works.

Among the latest discoveries of buried literary discoveries are those which have taken place at Tel-el-Amarna, between Mirach and Assiout on the eastern bank of the Nile. The mounds which covered this ancient capital have been made to yield up their secrets and their treasures. Among other things brought to light are the archives of Amenophis IV., containing correspondence and dispatches sent to that monarch and his father from officials and rulers in Palestine, and even in Assyria at so remote a period as the fifteenth century before Christ.

The details would be too lengthy, and perhaps too dry for the greater part of our readers to give in any degree in full. Those who are interested in them can have all the particulars in Professor Sayce's address, delivered at the annual meeting of the Victoria Institute in July last, and printed as part of the proceedings of that body.

The most notable thing about these discoveries is their cutting the ground from under the feet of those who have indulged in what has been called "destructive criticism" of the Old Testament by asserting that up to the time of David, at any rate, the art of writing had been practically unknown in Palestine, and that consequently the composition and commital to writing of the earlier books of the Bible had to be relegated to so late a date that no reliance was to be placed on their historical accuracy, as they were merely the result of mythical traditions of ignorant and uncultured peoples.

The discoveries show that long before the exodus, Canaan had its libraries and scribes, its schools and literary men; its official documents prove that its inhabitants, whom the Israelites subdued and whose culture they inherited, were as accurate as the inhabitants of Egypt and Babylonia, and that consequently all that has been based on their supposed illiteracy, as well as upon that of the Israelites who subdued them, must be set aside as entirely contrary to facts.

WHEN EVENING SHADOWS FALL.

When evening shadows fall
Like empty garments on the wall,
That hides her from the day,
And while old memories throng
And vanished voices call,
She lifts her grateful heart in song
When evening shadows fall.

Her weary hands forget
The burdens of the day;
The weight of sorrow and regret
In music rolls away,
And from the day's dull tomb,
That hold her in its thrall,
Her soul springs up in lily blooms
When evening shadows fall.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Where to Buy Choice Violins.

Why give hundreds of pounds for a "Strad" or a Magini when you can get the best violin in the market for not much more than as many shillings? Curious persons have often wanted to know where all the Strads come from. We are in a position to tell them. They come from a factory in the Reichenbergstrasse in Berlin, and you can have them on the most advantageous terms. The ordinary violin of commerce is to be had for the derisory price of a florin; while for five and sixpence a "very fine instrument" of high finish is to be obtained.

The very best Strad, a most artistic instrument, will cost you 17s.; while for 25s. you shall have a real Magini, "double purfled with artistically carved scroll." Beyond that you cannot go. A "highly recommended" Guarnerius costs 18s. 6d., and the very best Caspar da Salo a sovereign.—St. James Gazette.

One of Franklin's Stories.

In the third year of the revolution the British government proposed to make peace and grant the colonies the privilege they had demanded on the condition that they should pay the expenses of the war. Franklin replied that the proposal reminded him of something that happened when he lived in London. A Frenchman, who was a little out of his head, heated a poker red hot and then dashed into the street, exclaiming to the first man he met: "Me stick dis into you six inches." "No you don't," was the reply. "Well, den me stick it in dree inches!" "No, sir!" was the more emphatic reply. "Well den, sare, you will of course pay me for heating de poker." -New Haven Palladium.

Symbols of Saints.

In Christian art the various saints are symbolized as follows: Matthews, with an angel standing near him dictating the Gospel; Mark, accompanied by a winged lion; Luke has an ox near him; John, writing his Gospels or bearing a chalice from which a serpent issues; Paul, with a sword and an open book; Peter holds in his hand a book or scroll; James, with a sword, and sometimes attired as a pilgrim; Andrew, with a (x) cross; Philip, bearing a large cross or basket of loaves; Jude, a club or staff and carpenter's square; Thomas, a builder's square; Bartholomew, a knife, and Simon, with a sword in his hand.—Exchange.

George Washington's Genius.

The recent studies in George Washington's life and achievements should quiet the intimation of a lack of creative or original mind on his part. He who conceived the idea of the supreme court as a co-ordinate branch of government and foreshadowed the destiny of the great west when so many statesmen were ready to sacrifice the Missisippi river for temporary commercial benefits was a great thinker and creative statesman as well as a practical man in everyday affairs. The common sense of Washington was genius.—Washington Star.

Increase of Blindness and Insanity.

Dr. Lucius Howe says blindness has increased in the state of New York during the last five years thirteen times as fast as the population; and the state charities commissioners state that the excess in the increase of the insane in the state over the increase in its population for the last nine years has been more than 44 per cent. These figures are most startling, especially when it is considered that the modes of treating the eyes and brain are supposed to have been so much improved of late years.—Chicago Times.

The Champion Tramp of the World.

The champion tramp would seem to be one Folkers, whom The San Francisco Chronicle interviewed. He belongs to Portland, Me., and is a shoemaker by trade. For ten years he has been roaming the country, and he declares that not once during this time has he paid a railroad fare, though on all his trips he patronizes the "iron horse." He says he has a craze for traveling, which seems very evident from this statement that he rides about 20,000 miles per year. Altogether he has traveled 200,000 miles.

Why He Was Hard Up.

"Poor Bob is pretty deuced hard up, they tell me," said young Mr. Stratter, dropping a lump of sugar into his coffee.

"But you told me a while ago that Bob's father left him a large property!" exclaimed Humpkins.

"Yes, he did leave him a large property—a very large property."

"Then how in the dickens is Bob so hard up?"

"It was a summer hotel that his father left him."—Lewiston Journal.

Keeping Up with the Supply.

Freddie G., aged 5, contracted the habit of eating his food very rapidly. Repeated scoldings failed to correct the habit. Finally his mother one day angrily said:

"Freddie, what makes you eat so fast?"

With a mouthful of food and with stopping for an instant in his masticatory operations the youngster mumbled:

"Tause I want to see what's taming next."—Detroit Tribune.

She Wanted Wings.

When the news of Lee's surrender and the emancipation of the slaves reached a certain Virginia farm, an old colored aunty, whose dignity and immense size made her unusually quiet in her demonstrations, sprang into the air, threw her arms above her head, and clapping her hands violently together, exclaimed: "Mars Lincoln, gimme wings!"—Drake's Magazine.

Cool.

"Do you pass members of the profession?" asked a song and dance man of a theatrical manager.

"Oh, yes," was the reply, "very frequently—without speaking to them."—Merchant Traveler.

The Y-e-s-e.

From the maddening crowd they stood apart,
The maidens four and the Work of Art:

And none might tell from sight alone
In which had Culture chiefest grown.

The Gotham Million fair to see,
The Philadelphia pedigree,

The Boston Mind of Azure hue,
Or the soulful Soul from Kalamazoo.

For all loved Art in a comely way,
With an earnest soul and a capital A.

Long they worshiped, but no one broke
The sacred stillness, until up spoke

The western one from the maidenless place,
Who blushing said "What a lovely vase!"

Over three faces a sad smile flew,
And they edged away from Kalamazoo.

But Gotham's haughty soul was stirred
To crush the stranger with one small word.

Deftly hiding reproof in praise,
She cries: "Yes, indeed, a lovely vase!"

But brief her unworthy triumph when
The lofty one from the home of Penn.

With the consciousness of two grandpapas
Exclaims: "It is quite a lovely vaas."

And glancing round with an anxious thrill,
Awaits the word of Beacon Hill.

But the Boston maid smiles condescender
And gently murmurs: "Oh, pardon me

"I did not catch your remark, because I was so entranced with that charming vawse."
—James Jeffrey Roche in Rochester Post-Express.

A Bullet Rattles in His Head.

For over twenty-five years Fletcher Wright, who lives near Dawson, has carried a bullet in his head, a wound received in one of the battles in Virginia. This Minie ball shifts around at one time in front of the head, at another time in the back. At times this bullet gives Mr. Wright much uneasiness while at work in the field by its shifting about and the rattling noise it makes in the head.—Macon Telegraph.

It is said that the Methodist church intends to found a national university in Washington, and that arrangements are making for the purchase of a ninety acre tract of land on the Tenallytown road, near Oakview, ex President Cleveland's country home, as a site for the university. Bishop Hurst is at the head of the movement, and has paid an option of $1,000 on the property, which is to be sold for $100,000.

Patriarchal.

Middle aged ladies are commonly reputed to have more or less difficulty in computing their ages. The report is probably slanderous; but a story in Harper's Young People proves that the feminine mind does sometimes have trouble of a similar sort in early childhood.

Carrie came home from school the other day rather depressed about her examination.

"How did you get on with your questions?" asked mamma.

"I'm not sure of but just one question, but I know I got that right."

"What was it?"

"A man was born in 1841, and died in 1883; how old was he?"

"And what was your answer?"

"Oh, I added 1841 and 1883 together. It made an awful old man. I guess it must have been Methuselah."

Why We Have Old Maids.

She was very young, and her school was a district school near her father's farm. She was drawing a salary of $40 per month. An agent of one of the prominent music houses of St. Paul went traveling through that portion of the state selling organs. For several days he made ineffectual attempts to engage the interest of the schoolmistress. The business of negotiating for the organ she left entirely to her parents, and the young exquisite felt as though he was left out in the cold. So he asked her one day: "Why is it that so many schoolma'ams are old maids?"

With perfect "sang froid" she replied: "Because we do not care to give a $40 salary for a $50 man."—Detroit News.

A Novel Railway Suggested.

Herr Trautweiler thinks that a railway should go the top of the Jungfrau, and in The Schweizerische Bauzeitung gives a brief account of his scheme. The railway would go from the valley below to the summit, and would be almost entirely underground. There would be several intermediate stations, from which convenient, well arranged tunnels would lead to points on the mountain whence the best views are to be had. If stormy weather came on, the passengers could withdraw into the shelter of those tunnels. The railway would be lighted by electricity.

A Remarkable Colored Man.

On a plantation in Edgefield county, S. C., lives a negro who is puzzling all the people in that section. Nearly every night, about half an hour after he goes to bed, he enters into what appears to be a trance, and preaches a sermon. He is quite illiterate, but without a book and with his eyes closed, he takes a text which by reference to the Bible is found to be correct in chapter, verse and wording. In these trance sermons he uses better language than he does in ordinary conversation.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Why Johnny Was Sent to Bed.

Johnny's Mother (continuing to read)—"But the stubborn animal refused to go a step further, whereupon its master beat it so severely that it fell to the earth, its breath coming in quick, short pants." Dear me, that was terrible, wasn't it, Johnny? He might have tried kindness.

"Yes," responded Johnny, "or a trousers stretcher."

"Trousers stretcher!"

"Why, yes; for those quick, short pants."—Lippincott's.

A Long Wait.

Mrs. De Rampus (with glittering eyes)—I've just found out that you bought me expensive dress pattern at Silk & Co.'s a few days before Christmas.

Mr. De R.—Y-e-s, m' dear. It was for you, but I didn't want to be sent back to exchange it for some other shade, or weight, or width or some thing, and I've been waiting for a chance to find you in good humor before presenting it.—The New York Weekly.

What Prompted Her.

Rev. Dr. Primrose—God will reward your having deterred your husband from fighting that duel. It was a true Christian act.

Mrs. Saintly—Yes, my husband is an awful bad shot.—Epoch.

A Boon.

"This bread of yours, my dear, is a contradiction of the laws of gravity."

"Indeed!"

"Yes. It's as heavy as lead, but it won't go down."—Chatter.

THE $500 DEPOSIT TAX.

Those who take an interest in such things will discover that the principal sufferers by the Government's pet measure, the $500 deposit by candidates, were the Government candidates themselves. A just retribution some will say. Not sufficient stress was laid on this ignoble method of barring any but moneled rizes from running for parliament. The requirement however, is as flagrantly a class measure as was the Legal Professions Act, and the TIMES proclaims itself as uncompromisingly pledged to fight it until it is repealed. The next session of the House is some distance off, and hence there is plenty of time to agitate, but we cannot refrain from offering this bit of sentiment for the Opposition to pin on their coats where they ordinarily carry nosegays: Move for the repeal of the law; it will give the Independents an opportunity to make themselves known by their works, whether they are especially friendly to labor. Dr. MILNE will do well to make the repeal of this ignoble measure the initial effort of his legislative career.

SUNBEAMS FROM CUCUMBERS.

The Colonist, overhauling the TIMES' estimate of the probable strength of the Opposition in the House based on incomplete election returns, makes some corrections which of course this journal acknowledges with thanks. If the TIMES is mistaken in its estimate of the average intelligence of the average elector, it takes pleasure in acknowledging it. Fools of the superlative order are entitled to prominence and the mission of any paper is to give them space. If the ROBSON dynasty has been endorsed by Comox, so much the better for the ROBSON dynasty, and so much the worse for Comox. But this is a feature of the recent election which need not be expatiated on at this juncture. What concerns us most particularly just now is the direction in which the Independent cat is going to jump. The oracle on Government street is of the opinion that the Independents will ally themselves with the Government; that they will pin the census bib under their chin and go for Government lollypop in preference to the dry crusts of the Opposition. This is not the exact language of the Colonist, but it is the substance of Colonistic argument. It is what the Colonist would say if it dared. It is ROBSONian philosophy encased in metaphor, in which it resembles the traditional fly embedded in amber. But let us pass the Independents in view and see whether the Colonist is correct in its estimate. Those who take the trouble to read the platform of Messrs. CUTTON and HORNE will discover that they have lenicest of a good deal of Opposition doctrine. Their platform and that of the Opposition is practically identical. In the matter of the preservation of the public lands, in the matter of a wild land tax, in the matter of the management of the roads and bridges and the Lands and Works Department generally, in the matter of lien laws and finally in the matter of schools, we have a doctrine diametrically opposed to the policy of the Government, and in fact corresponding with that of the Opposition. Now is it safe to infer that the Independents will array themselves under the shift and evasions which are usually the symbol of the Government? The slogan of the Independents is reform. What does reform mean? Reform means the abandonment of an existing policy. If the Government refuses to abandon their policy, what is those newly-fledged Independents going to do about it? Will they stultify themselves in the eyes of the country by supporting a policy they are pledged to overthrow, or will they ally themselves with the Opposition and oust the Cabinet? So far as the TIMES is concerned, it is confident that the Independents will differ from the Government over just the very matters which lies closest to the Government heart. How will the decentralization of school management affect JOHN ROBSON. Nobody knows better than JOHN ROBSON himself that next winter he will be face to face with men who, though they may use him with extreme courtesy, regard him a relic of old decency. The Premier will doubtless urge, when the fight commences, that redistribution is at the bottom of it. Don't let him deceive himself. It lays deeper than that. Redistribution simply confirmed what was in most men's minds, namely, that the Government plan of campaign was trickery. Such is the situation, and if the Government can extract any comfort from it they possess the secret of extracting sunbeams from cucumbers.

BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

It is not likely that a war will eventuate between England and France over the Newfoundland fisheries. As Behring Sea is to the United States so are the Newfoundland fisheries to France. The game is either case is not worth the effort of powder burning. The secret of French disaffection is England's occupancy of Egypt. In this matter France made a mistake in not accepting England's offer of joint occupancy of the land of the Pharoahs, and has felt sore over it ever since. France, however, cannot decently kick up a muss over the Egyptian matter, but will seek to make all the capital she can out of her Newfoundland interests. It might be thought that should France and England engage it would be all day with the former. Necessarily, however, such a war would be for naval supremacy, and the attitude of any other single power, Germany for instance, would make no difference with France. The French-English war would consist of a series of naval encounters, and the former worsted she would still be as strong on land as ever. This was pointed out by Sir CHARLES BERESFORD, in his demand that the navy be increased, and he also pointed out that British valor imprisoned in iron tubs would not count for much in naval warfare. It was all a question of machinery, steaing gear, and a few lucky shots, phases in which the French stood as good a chance of participating as the English. Able editors in discussing the probabilities of an Anglo-French war need not look for German interference. Nothing is more certain that in the event of England becoming seriously involved with France, Russia would advance on India. An Anglo-French war would probably embroil all Europe, and out of the chaos republics would arise.

BURT VS. BISMARCK.

The London Times, under the title "Two views of the labor question," contrasts the utterances of Mr. THOS. BURT, M.P., the Parliamentary representative of the Northumbrian miners, with those of BISMARCK, the deposed Chancellor of Germany. "Trust in yourselves and help yourselves," says Mr. BURT in effect. "You have in combination a power capable of effecting all your legitimate objects, even to the reduction of the hours of labor within reasonable limits; and without combination not even legislation will help you. Strike if you must when all other methods of securing your objects have failed, but bear in mind that a strike is a dangerous weapon, not to be lightly taken in hand. Conciliation and arbitration are in most cases a better and more reasonable way. Above all, eschew violence and illegality. Trust in the justice and reasonableness of your cause, and learn, as Englishmen have learnt, the inestimable value of patient, steady, persistent agitation by legal, rational and constitutional means. So only will you permanently better your condition without forfeiting that helpful sympathy which is now accorded you by all classes of society, from the highest to the lowest. Your worst enemies are those who counsel intimidation, violence and outrage."

"This," remarks the Times, "is unmistakably the language of moderation, good sense, and true industrial wisdom." BISMARCK, on the other hand, holds that the "labor question is incapable of complete and final solution." His dictum is, "Take care of capital and leave labor to take care of itself. The dissatisfaction of capitalists is formidable to the state and must be appeased. The discontent of the working men is a kind of a violent lever which perpetually urges them on. The majority of working men, however, are not terrible. It is the turbulent minorities which make revolutions. You cannot satisfy the working man, because that is not important to him the faculty of contentment. Satisfy him to-day, and he will find new wants and make fresh demands to-morrow, and so there is no end to it. Not even the Russian CZAR would be equal to the task of solving the labor question." Great men have their weak spots, BISMARCK has his, and his seems to be a that kind of which BURNS sang, "Man's inhumanity to man," etc., coupled with an absence of knowledge of human nature, which in another man would be attributed to ignorance. "You cannot satisfy the workingman." What man is satisfied who must expend all his energies for a bare livelihood? Has BISMARCK never imagined himself in the place of a workingman that he might fathom the spirit which inspires the workingman's demands? If he has never done so he is unfit to deal with the labor question. BISMARCK draws a distinction between capital and labor which would lead us to infer that the capitalist and the laborer were not derived from a common source, as he leaves us to infer one is human the other is not. One must be treated as human the other as cattle. He forgets that man's desires irrespective of their condition, in this world, are only limited by his faculty of attainment. Unless BISMARCK keeps his mouth shut something evidently, he has no intention of doing, posterity will dilate him as a great man.

DO AMERICANS HATE ENGLAND?

In the last North American Review GOLDWIN SMITH has a article "Do Americans hate England." The Review for June contains rejoinders from various noted Americans who do not agree with Professor SMITH. The most amusing of these and at the same time as conclusive as any is one by Gen. HORACE PORTER. Says Gen. PORTER:

When Professor Goldwin Smith chose for the subject of an article in an American magazine "The Hatred of England," He exposed himself to the remark that Emerson made about Byron—"he wanted something craggy to break his mind against," and the distinguished author of the article has in this instance as in many others shown himself quite adroitly successful in avoiding a disposition to illustrate the literary truth that "the great art of writing shows itself in the choice of pleasing allusions." When he recounts the hostile acts of England towards America, and then takes her to task for not having quietly swallowed them as palatable morsels, he seems to put his country in the attitude of the aggravating small boy who was testing the extent of his little brother's amiability by rapping his skull with a mallet, and who after getting out of all patience at the child's exasperating lack of appreciation of such methods, finally called to his mother: "Mamma, come and make Freddy behave; every time I hit him over the head with this mallet he yells." After his recital of the formidable list of national virtues of the parent country, which he sets forth as shining examples to others, with that enthusiasm which is always a pardonable weakness in a loyal Briton, the offspring country, would seem to be left with nothing to do but sit down and console itself with the words of Charles II. when he said he always admired virtue but could never imitate it.

It is a significant fact that, Professor Smith is accusing us of Anglophobia, we are accusing a large element of our people of Anglomania. One of the symptoms of the attack is observed in the terms employed. We find here Victoria hotels, Her Majesty's opera, royal baking powders, imperial trains, and harness-makers to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; and when the anthem of "John Brown" is sung, there appears to be a confusion in the minds of some of our more advanced Anglomaniacs as to whether the reference to the possessor of so progressive a soul is an allusion to our hero of Harper's Ferry or the Queen's late gillie. When the dude Britannicus makes his appearance in Piccadilly his worthy counterpart, the dude Americanus, immediately exhibits himself on Fifth avenue, rolls up his trousers when the cable announces rain in London, sucks the head of an equally large cane, and adopts the same transatlantic swing when he walks, at the risk of being set down as appearing bow-legged in the elbows. Even the Irish, whose presence here is a never-failing source of irritation to the author of the article under discussion, are supposed to be coming over to the ranks of the Anglomaniacs, if we may credit the story of the coachman from the Isle of emerald hue who recently applied to a lady here for a situation, and when asked by her, "Are you an Englishman?" replied, "No, mum, I was born in Orland, but I've lived so long in Amriky that I suppose I do seem quite English."

If we are misjudged through the writings of English tourists, we should not be thrown on the defensive in consequence. We cannot keep on explaining for ever that we do not as a population, spend the whole of St. Patrick's Day sitting on the steps of Tammany Hall with our feet stuck on the telegraph wires, engaged in applauding the Irish parade; that we did not construct the elevated railways solely to prevent travel from interrupting the St. Patrick's Day processions in the streets of New York.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

At the Methodist conference at Ottawa, Sir John Macdonald was introduced by the President, and briefly addressed the conference on the success of the various churches in the midst of pseudo science and unbelief. He said that it afforded him great comfort in his declining years to know that the various churches were waging prosperous war for truth and right. He said, "As an old man I can only pray that my declining years may be soothed by the continued prosperity of the great Methodism of our land."

The retirement of Lord WOLSELEY from active service will be a shock to those people who believe that he is "the only general." Certainly Lord WOLSELEY was the general of modern ideas. Every campaign he entered upon he had been a contractor, and not a Government contractor either. He knew just where and when he would fight his decisive battles, just how much the campaign would cost, and his estimates were generally correct. If army positions were all given according to merit Lord WOLSELEY would be the successor of the Duke of Cambridge.

LIVERPOOL, B.C.

The Fraser River Terminus of the New Westminster Southern Railway,

Opposite the rapidly growing City of New Westminster, and having deep water frontage on Fraser River.

The New Westminster Southern Railway runs from Liverpool to Fairhaven, Wash., where it connects with the great Northern Pacific Railway system. The Railway Company has now under construction at Liverpool a wharf 700 feet in length, costing about $10,000, and they intend to immediately erect workshops, passenger and freight stations, etc. The road is already graded between Liverpool and Fairhaven, and it is expected that trains will be in operation between the two places by 30th August, 1890.

A portion of the town site will be on the market on and after 16th June instant, and lots will be sold at low prices for a short time, and purchasers will have the benefit of first prices.

THE PROPERTY QUALIFICATION.

Among the over-fed, manhood suffrage is a bitter pill, and especially does it appear bitter to the Tories. "One of Mr. MEREDITH's organs," says the Ottawa Free Press, "wants to know why a man should not vote at provincial elections in every constituency in which he happens to own property." The Free Press points out, in answer to this absurd proposition, that it is "manhood and not houses" which should be represented in a legislative assembly. "If property," continues the Free Press, "is to be regarded as the basis of voting, what justice or common sense is there in giving ten votes to the man who owns $2,000 worth of property scattered over ten constituencies, and only one vote to a man who may own two million dollars worth of property all situated in one constituency? SYDNEY SMITH once put the Tory plea of property qualification for voters in a nut-shell. 'We are told,' he said, 'that no man who is not a property-owner should vote. Very well. A man can qualify on a span of mules to-day. To-night the mules may die. To-morrow the owner is disfranchised. Now who is it that enjoys the franchise, the man or the mules?' It is natural that the Ontario Tories should object to manhood suffrage because Sir JOHN MACDONALD refuses to grant it in Dominion elections." The property qualification is not in vogue in this Province, thank Heaven, but we have its corollary in the law which requires candidates for the legislature to deposit $200. This law is to all intents a property qualification. It does not, indeed, give a man more than one vote; but it says in effect none but men of property shall sit in our legislative assembly.

A RIDICULOUS LIE.

The following telegram has appeared in all the American and Eastern Canadian papers:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—A despatch from Victoria, B. C., says: The seal pirates in Behring Sea have adopted a new device for circumventing the revenue officers, which is even now being put in successful operation, and which can be carried on throughout the summer unless the United States Government sends to the Arctic swifter revenue cutters than the Bear and Rush. The pirates have established a rendezvous at Sand Point, midway of the Aleutian group of islands. The schooners, when they have collected 100 seal skins, put in there, leave their cargo, and then resume hunting. Thus, if they are overhauled by the American cutters, they will have so few skins, that they can be thrown overboard or concealed and all evidence of seal poaching removed. A swift steamer has been chartered to cruise about Sand Point and take the skins as the schooners come in. This vessel is so fast that it can easily outrun any Government steamer now in commission. This steamer will make trips to Victoria and unload the skins when she gets a cargo, and then return. The work, it is said, has already been in operation one week. The pirates expect to make a larger clean up than last year.

This sort of nonsense is calculated to do the sealers of Victoria a great deal of injury, and if the dispatch was ever sent from Victoria, which we doubt, it must be the work of a correspondent who is more anxious to work up a sensation than to publish the truth. Victoria sealers are sometimes called "pirates" by the jingo press of the United States, but never by the sensible American journals or by the Canadian newspapers. The story about a rendezvous in Behring sea is on a par with former lies about armed schooners, etc., and possibly all may have emanated from the same fertile brain.

A GOVERNMENT WITHOUT A MAJORITY.

We have revised our political "slate" and find that parties are constituted as follows:

	Govt.	Opp.	Ind.
Victoria City	1	2	0
Victoria District	2	0	0
Esquimalt	2	0	0
Nanaimo City	0	0	1
Nanaimo District	0	1	1
Comox	1	0	0
Alberni	1	0	0
Vancouver	0	0	2
Westminster City	0	0	1
Westminster District	1	0	2
Yale	2	1	0
Cariboo	1	0	1
East Kootenay	0	1	0
West Kootenay	0	1	0
Cassiar
Islands	0	0	1
	14	6	9

If the election has not resulted in a complete opposition triumph, it has unquestionably eventuated in the defeat of the Government. During the canvass, the Premier prophesied that his Government would carry twenty-four out of the thirty-three constituencies. Up to the present time it has carried exactly fifteen seats, or two less than a majority of a full House. In preparing this "slate" we have counted Cassiar and one seat in Cariboo as still vacant. The election in Cassiar has not yet been held, and the chances there are equally as good for the Opposition as for the Government. The Premier has been elected for New Westminster and Cariboo districts, and as he dare not reopen New Westminster, where he is the only Government candidate elected, there will be another election in Cariboo. Should that go Government, which is by no means certain, the total voting strength of the Government would be sixteen, or, in other words, the Oppositionists with the Independents would have a majority of one. Giving them Cassiar, the Government would still be without a working majority. The position of the Government is extremely critical. An appeal to the country has shown that it is supported by a small minority only of the electors of the Province, and that to-day it has not got a majority of the representatives at its back. There are constitutional precedents for the resignation of the cabinet under such circumstances, as there are precedents for the dismissal of advisers who have lost the confidence of the people. It is, of course, right that the returns from all the districts should be received before the Premier, in compliance with the fundamental principle of responsible Government, tenders his resignation to the Lieut.-Governor, but it must already be obvious to Mr. ROBSON that the country has spoken with unmistakable voice, and that his Government no longer possesses the confidence of a majority of the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Queen's desire that the Commander-in-Chiefship of the British army should pass to the Duke of Connaught by inheritance is the most natural wish in the world. Let the Duke have the nominal command of the British army if it will please his royal mother, but place beside him as an adviser the expert who otherwise would have been given the command. Still, the Queen would have small ground for complaint in the event of the Government refusing to acquiesce in her wish. The royal youth is but a carpet knight. Why should a man be given so responsible a command who has never smelt powder save as it was wafted to his nostrils at target practice. It is not, probably, Connaught's fault that he has not had an opportunity to distinguish himself by flood and field. He has not been given the opportunity. There is no royal road to the commander-in-chiefship of a position calling for the highest military qualifications attainable. Doubtless Her Majesty's ministers will lay some stress on this feature of the case. It ought to be laid down to Her Majesty that since she would not give her sons an opportunity to earn military distinction, she must be content that they fill subordinate positions only, positions where if they possess the military instinct, they will have full opportunity to make it manifest.

COL. WOLFENDEN WITHDRAWS.

TO THE EDITOR:—Finding that my official duties will interfere with the proper discharge of the functions of a School Trustee, I beg to notify my many friends that I have retired from the contest in James Bay ward. Yours truly, R. WOLFENDEN.

Victoria, 16th June, 1890.

A SMART TRICK FAILS.

TO THE EDITOR:—John Robson is a smart man, but like most men who try to be too clever he sometimes overreaches himself. Col. Wolfenden is Government printer, and for several years has been a member of the school board. You, Mr. Editor, among others, protested against an employee of the Government occupying the position of trustee, on the ground that he could not serve two masters, and that, as the relationships of the board and the Government were very much mixed that he would have to perform his duties as a trustee subject to the dictation of the so-called Minister of Education. But recent events have shown that Col. Wolfenden has a mind of his own. It now transpires that Col. Wolfenden intended running again and was to have been opposed by Mr. McConnan, who is the nominee of Mr. Macleod. But because he supported Miss Cameron in her fight with the pulpit and the department Mr. Robson decided that he should not again become trustee. With a cunning that is characteristic of the man, Robson did not inform Col. Wolfenden of this fact until the eleventh hour, when it was hoped that, no other candidate offering, the nominee of the conspirators would be elected by acclamation. But they were mistaken. There was just time before the closing of the nominations, to put forward Mr. Mallette, and that gentleman will, instead of Col. Wolfenden, oppose the candidate of the wire-pullers. It was a sharp game but it failed. Robson was at the bottom of it, and I have no doubt the petty tyrant was in hopes that he could yet punish the young lady who had the courage to defend herself against the onslaught of the minister's spokesman. Col. Wolfenden now knows that he cannot serve two masters and that in following his own inclinations and in doing what he believed to be right, he was taking the surest way to incur the displeasure of the department.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

The lacrosse match played at New Westminster on Saturday between a home team and one from the Victoria club, was won by the former, three goals to one. The first two goals were won by the home team in 27 minutes and 7½ minutes respectively, the third by the visitors in 26¼ minutes, and the fourth by the home team in 5 minutes. About 1000 visitors witnessed the contest. The executive committee of the Lacrosse Association met in the evening and gave their decision on the protest of the Victorians against an imported player which Vancouver had placed in the field on the 24th of May. The protest was allowed, and the game will be played over in Vancouver on the 1st of July. The rules require that the player shall have been in the Province thirty days before the match is played.

JAMES BAY VS. WELLINGTON.

The baseball match played at the Caledonian grounds on Saturday between the James Bay and Wellington teams, was decidedly the best game of the season, the Wellington boys giving the Victorians a complete surprise. The visitors managed to score two runs in the first two innings, while the Bays were whitewashed in each. The third and fourth innings were exactly the reverse, the Bays scoring two to the visitors' none, making a tie at 2-2. Both teams then got down to work. In the sixth Wellington failed to score but Hannan got in one for the Bays. Both teams managed to score in the seventh. The eighth innings was another whitewash for the visitors, while the Bays scored three, making the score 3 to 7 in their favor. The Wellingtons again failed to score in the ninth, leaving the Bays winners with an innings to spare. The Wellington boys acted perfectly and were well satisfied with the way in which they were treated. It is to be hoped that in the future the game will be better patronized, as clubs cannot be expected to play for glory alone, especially the visitors. Following is the score:

The National and Juvenile clubs also played a game on the hill when the former won with a score of 27 to 1.

CRICKET.

The Victoria College and Oak Leaves eleven played their second game of the series on Saturday at the Hill. The College boys scored 57, and the Leaves 48 in the first innings; in the second the Leaves got 84, making a total of 132, and the Collegiates 41, with a total of 98, the Leaves winning by 34 runs.

The match game between Victoria and Vancouver clubs played on Saturday, drew a large crowd to the Hill. Game was called at 10:30, but it was past twelve before the home team showed up. The game which followed was not very brisk, and resulted in a win for the Vancouver men, they obtaining in the first innings 87 runs against Victoria's 51. In the second innings Victoria got 34 runs, and the Vancouver's won with the loss of one wicket.

O'BRIEN'S BRIDE

Is Not the Handsome Brunette Described by Cable Correspondents.

LONDON, June 11.—The scene in and about Brompton Oratory on the occasion of the marriage of Miss Sophia Raffalovitch to William O'Brien, to-day were characterized throughout by evidences of Irish political enthusiasm impossible of concealment, and many of the leading Nationalist members of parliament present were treated to somewhat noisy proofs of the popular esteem in which they are held. The church was filled to the extent of its capacity, the guests including Herbert Gladstone, a large majority of the Parnellite members of parliament, many English members, a number of prominent French residents, and a large gathering of ladies. The interior of the edifice was beautifully decorated with flowers, palms, etc. O'Brien was late in arriving, and looked pale and worn as he took his place at the altar by the side of his bride, who, although commonly described as tall, lithe and beautiful, is really short, dark and indeniably homely. Dillon bore his part as groomsman perfectly, and contributed greatly to the smoothness with which the affair was conducted. Little girls acted as maids of honor. Parnell looked ruddy, and appeared to be in excellent health and spirits.

Tennyson's Early Love.

Rev. Charles Yeld, of Nottingham, England, has made a discovery which cannot fail to be of special interest to the Poet Laureate's admirers. It is nothing less than a little romance of the poet's early days, vouched for, not by idle rumor, but by a copy of a poetical tribute to "his mistress' eyebrow," which is believed to be now brought to light for the first time.

The youthful poet, so runs the legend, was in love with a young lady of the name of Bradshaw and expressed his feelings toward her in the following lines:

> Because she bore the iron name,
> Of him who doomed his king to die,
> I dreamed her one of hardier frame,
> And looks that gave the power by;
> But found a maiden, tender, shy,
> With fair blue eyes and passing sweet,
> And longed to kiss her hands and lie
> A thousand summers at her feet.

Mr. Yeld states that one day while young Mr. Tennyson was out driving with Miss Bradshaw, her mother and three other ladies, some one asked the time. On this Tennyson took out his watch. Whereupon Miss Bradshaw leaned over a little, and her worshiper exclaimed, "Don't." "Why, am I not to look?" asked the young lady, to which Tennyson replied, "No, it would stop to look at you." This being one of those naively ingenious replies which lovesick youths delight to address to the objects of their passion the authenticity of the anecdote ought not to be rashly questioned.—London News.

The Clock Deceived Him.

A man walked west on Madison street at 10:30 a. m. the other day. He was clad in a faded ulster and carried in his right hand a satchel made principally of Brussels carpet. He was gazing in at show windows and appeared to have a great deal of time at his disposal until he happened to notice a clock overhanging the sidewalk. It was a "dummy clock" that always marks 11:15, but when he saw it he gathered up the skirts of his ulster and started west on a dead run. People who saw him coming lost no time in getting out of his way. He chased across Madison street bridge and tore south to the Union depot. "Where's my train?" he yelled to the gateman. "What train?" was asked. "Why, the 11:20 train for the west," he replied. The gateman looked disgusted. "It's now only 10:40," he said, "and you've got forty minutes yet." The countryman fell into a seat, thoroughly exhausted. He wondered how the clock which had given him warning could mark 11:15, and he never realized that he had caught sight of a timepiece which was painted to represent 11:15 o'clock all the year around.—Chicago Herald.

Preserving Flowers.

Corsage bouquets may be kept fresh a long while by surrounding the stems with moistened powdered willow charcoal, which in turn may be wrapped in moss or cotton. The same substance placed in the bottom of a vase in which flowers are kept will be very useful, provided the stems are cut off with a sharp knife once or twice a day. Another way to preserve cut flowers is to immerse in a solution of gum arabic and water two or three times, waiting a sufficient time between each immersion to allow the gum to dry. This process covers the surface with a thin coat of gum, which is entirely impervious to the air, and thus prevents the withering of the flowers. Roses thus preserved have all the beauty of freshly plucked ones, though they have been plucked several months.—Toronto Empire.

Test Even in Begging.

A well known restaurant down town runs through an entire block, with doors opening into two streets. Nearly all the patrons of the place enter at one door and leave at the other. A ragged tramp stood for an hour at the latter door and begged piteously for a "penny to buy something to eat" without meeting with any success. Then an idea occurred to him, and he walked rapidly around to the other door, and poured forth his plaint to those entering the restaurant. He succeeded admirably, and gathered in a good deal of coin. He deserved it, too, for he was bright enough to see that hungry men care more apt to pity hunger in others than men who had gorged themselves.—New York Sun.

Count Gleichen, of London, has been writing his impressions of New York. He found only one thing which London could copy to advantage, and that is the cab driver's fashion of blanketing his horse when the animal is standing in the cold.

ABOUT SOCIABILITY.

It is a Good Thing, but is Liable Some times to Be Abused.

The influence of sociability upon the character and behavior of men is now so important that it is well to consider what kinds of sociability promote their moral welfare. Good-natured, friendly people are perforce sociable. They like to be in the society of others, make friends easily, and sometimes become so enamored of life in society that they neglect graver duties. This is an injury to themselves and to others, but it arises from an abuse of sociability or intemperance in its use. Others are incapable of appreciating any kind of sociability that is not boisterous in character, and to promote high spirits in themselves and friends resort to drink, and find enjoyment only in scenes of merriment promoted by vicious indulgences. This form of sociability is, of course, injurious, but it represents an abuse of that which in itself is good. The man who keeps to and within himself grows selfish, callous and indifferent and out of sympathy with the rest of mankind, and he is punished for it by a loss of the friendly interest of others in his welfare, for there is a kind of commercial or trade rule governing friendship and unconsciously observed by every body. Every body expects a return of friendship for friendship, and nobody is the friend of the man who is friend to nobody. Sociability therefore implies or is based upon mutual friendly interest, at least for the time being. Strangers who meet but once may be sociable, but while they are together they must act as friends. That it is a good thing to do so may be inferred from the fact that to be friendly one must surrender a little selfishness, develop an interest in others and display a kindly sympathy. The reactionary effect of such behavior on character is beneficial, so that by being sociable one promotes his own welfare. The general happiness of any circle or community is greatly increased by sociability. It is not enough for any rightly constituted man that he shall have for his own enjoyment the good things of life. To properly appreciate them he must share them with others and have his own gratification reflected in that of his friends and neighbors. But he is denied this if he has not been sociable. True friends can not be bought at will or made in a day. The man who has selfishly pursued his business, neglecting all social duties to devote his time to money-getting until he has amassed a fortune, finds too late that he has not the means to enjoy his possessions. He does not even know how to be sociable, and his awkward attempts to do an unaccustomed thing excite the derision of his new acquaintances. He is a fortunate man if he succeeds in gathering about him a few friends before his disappointments have soured his disposition and forced him to again retire within himself. But, on the other hand, sociability may be abused, and the young are very liable to be led astray by the enjoyments of society. All people have duties to perform, and these should not be neglected or sacrificed to claims of friendship or for purposes of idle enjoyment. Thus, while sociability should be encouraged, the young should not neglect their studies for the sake of the society of their friends and companions; the employe should not neglect his work to attend parties or make visits; the man of business should not idle away his time for the sake of social enjoyments. There is time enough for sociability in leisure hours, and in these hours it should be practiced, not merely as a duty, but for the sake of its happy influence on one's self and others. It is a mistake to suppose that boisterousness is a necessary mark of sociability. It is quite common to hear the remark that some noisy, effusive man who insists upon his friends drinking and carousing with him is very sociable and "a good fellow," but the contrary is very often the case. His affectiveness may be mere acting, overdone in the effort to convey a false impression, and his insistence that his friends shall do as he wants them to do betrays a selfish disregard of their wishes that is incompatible with true friendship. Liquor drinking is not needed to promote real sociability. It may stimulate to better expression of friendly feeling, but it can not create the feeling itself, which is the one essential thing to all sociability. It follows that to promote sociability one should cultivate a friendly interest in others, not depending upon any artificial stimulus, and in doing so should not neglect business or other duties for the sake of social enjoyments.—Baltimore Sun.

Peter's Pence for 1889.

The sums received at Rome last year by Peter's pence are reported to have been as follows: From Austria, about £16,000; Spain, £8,000; France, £12,800; Germany, £7,200; Ireland, £5,000; England, £3,800; Belgium, £6,200; Switzerland, £2,200; Poland, £2,400; North America, £7,400; South America, £12,400; Africa, £3,800; Asia, £4,600; Roumania, £4,000; Italy, £14,000, and Portugal, £6,000. Other sums, making up £4,000, were collected in Australia, Oceanica, Russia, Sweden, Norway, etc. The whole sum received was about £139,096, being less by £6,000 than what was received in 1888. The European states which contributed nothing were Turkey, Montenegro, Greece and Servia.—London Daily News.

—Thirteen years ago a miner named Thompson went into Bear gulch, Dakota, with the vow that he would never leave the canyon until he was rich enough to wear out with a "comb and fork." Literally speaking, he succeeded. His promise did not take many years to fulfill. He was for many years the only inhabitant of the gulch. Escaping the raids of hostile Indians, who in the early days of the Black Hills were continually on the war-path, he struggled along placer-mining, making enough to keep in the necessaries of life, and in all that time never was more than two miles from his camp. The other day he appeared on the streets of Spearfish, having at last struck the "rich find" he had valued so long and labored so hard for.

THE SUN GOD.

Lone as the Summit of the Sun, He stood
High in his chariot car, himself more bright;
An Author of innumerable nights
On his left shoulder hung its quivered load;
Spurned by his steeds the eastern mountains glowed;
Forward his eager eye and brow of light
He bent; and, while both hands that arch embowed,
Shaft after shaft pursued the flying night,
No wings profaned that godlike form; around
His neck, high held, an ever moving crowd
Of locks hung glittering; while such perfect sound
Fell from his bowstring that th' ethereal dome
Thrilled as a dew drop; and each passing cloud
Expanded whitening like the ocean foam.
—Aubrey De Vere.

Brazilian Markets.

Among the most interesting novelties to the traveler in a Brazilian city are the markets and the bird bazars. The market is ordinarily to be regarded as the pulse of the town. If it be well served, clean and orderly the blood circulation of the community may safely be considered as excellent. Judged by this test there are few, if any, coast towns in Brazil in which there is sound digestion. The markets are dirty, disorderly and unattractive. There are scanty and ill managed displays of meats. The poor live on jerked beef of inferior grades. Of fish there is a larger assortment, but fresh vegetables are lacking. Even the display of tropical fruits is disappointing.—Cor. New York Tribune.

Combustion in the Human Body.

The Comptes Rendus contains an article by M. Berthelot on the animal heat of the human body. Lavoisier, who first recognized the fact that animal heat is produced by combustion, raised the question as to whether this combustion takes place in the lungs at the point the oxygen is absorbed, or in the entire system. M. Berthelot finds that one-seventh is produced in the lungs, while six-sevenths are produced in the system by reactions of oxidation and hydration. The absorption of oxygen raises the temperature of blood in the lungs, while the return of the carbonic acid to a gaseous state and the evaporation of moisture tends to lower it.

Ancient Lands Being Re-discovered.

Such have been the changes of time that much of the world is still an unknown land, and we are now busily engaged in discovering much that was known before.

The valleys of the Missouri, Ohio and Mississippi swarmed with people engaged in business and agriculture. Mexico had a population much exceeding its present one; the ruins of great cities in Central America attest its former greatness, and it is certain that Peru, under the Incas, was the seat of a mighty civilization. Australia, however, has always been a sparsely settled country.—Golden Days.

The Care of the Feet.

Too many people live as strangers to their feet. In other words, the offices of the feet are not fairly appreciated.

Let it be understood that in the bottom of the feet are the largest pores; that these pores should be kept open, and this by the agency of pure water, coarse towel and frequent change of stockings.

Besides the feet are "neighbors" more remote from the central powers and working forces of the body than the hands, hence all the more should they receive most courteous attention.—Machias Union.

Goats Act as Shepherds.

In Switzerland and other mountainous countries the goat leads long strings of animals daily to and from the mountains, but it is in South Africa that it is regularly kept and employed as a leader of flocks of sheep. Should a blinding storm of rain or hail drive the silly sheep before it, or cause them to huddle together in a corner so as to suffocate each other, the trained goat will wake them up, and, by a method best known to himself, will induce them to follow him to a place of safety.—New York Journal.

Europe's Shifting Population.

Europe was settled from the south, and the very small portion comprising Italy, Spain and the islands of the Mediterranean sea were populous for centuries, while that we know now as France, Germany, England, Austria and Russia were forests and deserts, quite as barbarous and uncultivated as the present interior of Africa.

These were the countries of antiquity, North and South America and Australia being unknown. Yet the two former were densely populous in ages long ago.—Golden Days.

A Machine That Wraps Oranges.

An ingenious machine for wrapping oranges hails from Oneida county. It will wrap in paper 2,500 oranges an hour. It is compact and handy, 3 feet long by 3 feet high and 18 inches wide. The fruit passes from a grinder down a slide, one orange at a time, into a wire cup, which opens and drops the orange on a square piece of paper cut by the machine from a roller, then passes through an aperture which wraps the paper and trims it, and then it passes on to the carrier.—New Orleans Picayune.

Unconscious of His Existence.

A Maine soldier, who was a participant in one of the battles of Sherman's March to the Sea, a fight lasting several hours, avers that from the firing of the first hostile gun until the battle closed, his conscious existence was lost, and he was never able to recall a single incident of the fight.—Lewiston Journal.

In the field of war invention modern invention shows a French invention is a smoke bomb, intended to be fired into the ranks of the enemy who uses smokeless powder and obscure his view.

There is beginning to be an outcry against big dinners; that is, dinners of too many courses. Nine courses are as many as one's digestion will stand with comfort, and these should be well seasoned with cheerful conversation.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

GOBBLED THE GAMBLERS.

Chinese Games Raided by the City Police—Ten Prisoners.

Several weeks ago a raid was made by the city police on the Chinese gamblers of Cormorant street, and several of the almond eyed tiger fighters were fined in the city court for indulging in the favorite game of fan tan. Latterly the Chinese have been very wary in running their games, and particularly watchful guards have been placed outside to give warning of the approach of the police, consequently it has been very hard to get evidence sufficient to guarantee an arrest, although the police knew that games were going on.

Last evening, however, Sergt. Walker and Officer Redgrave made a capture of ten of the Chinese gamblers, and very cleverly they effected it. Officer Redgrave first rigged himself up in an old coat and slouch hat, and with a stout cane went limping down Cormorant street, looking more like a man of sixty years than the active young man he really is. So successfully was he disguised, that the doorkeeper of a gambling den at No. 24 Cormorant street did not detect the fact until the said doorkeeper found himself in the strong grip of the officer. The doorkeeper, who is a big burly Chinaman, fought like a fiend, but was soon overpowered, and a swoop on the gambling room above stairs was made, Sergt. Walker in his official uniform now appearing on the scene. To a Chinaman the sight of a badge and uniform is an all powerful persuasive, and the occupants of the room made little or no attempt at resisting, although many escaped.

Twelve of the principals of the game were corralled by the officers, but two got away with a pair of handcuffs, and the rest were taken to the police station, and this morning were dealt with in the manner provided for by law, being fined $20 and $2 costs each.

KOOTENAY PROJECTS.

A Northern Pacific Connection—Large Company Forming at Spokane.

There is important news to tell to the readers of the TIMES, concerning the wonderful Kootenay silver district. Some days ago Mr. Adrian, a distinguished expert, representing the Northern Pacific railway company, came here to propose to the mine owners a branch of that line from Kootenai, Idaho, to a point a few miles below Bonner's Ferry, and he has gone away confident that $250,000 can easily be raised among the capitalists interested. This line and an ice boat running down the Kootenay river and lake will secure access at all seasons to the mineral camps. Great encouragement is this and it has been followed by Mr. Wheeler's company, operating nineteen claims at the Warm Springs, deciding to put in at once pumping machinery to clear the Skylight and Keno; and this will be followed probably before the end of the season by an electric power plant on Coffee Creek which will go far to develop the country.

There appears to be little doubt that Hendry's company will build a big smelter at the Bluebill mine. A mine with two eighty foot ledges cannot prevent being a bonanza sooner or later.

But the best news is that a company is being formed of Spokane capitalists now in camp, with two million dollars. They are going to push work on eleven claims now in their hands and the result will be a very big one.

Within a few years a mining town of the calibre of Butte and Leadville will spring up on Kootenay lake. No time for more. H. R. A. POCOCK.

TO BE BUILT HERE.

The Contract Let for the Construction of a Powerful Engine.

The street railway company has awarded the contract for the building of the new engine, which is necessary to keep pace with the rapid extension of their system, and the work of building it will be done in this city, the Albion Iron Works Co. being the successful tenderers. The engine is to be a very powerful one of 300 horse-power nominal, being compound, with cylinders 17 inches and 32 inches diameter by 36 inches stroke. A condenser large enough to deal with the steam used by a 500 horse-power engine is also to be built, so that the present engine can be used as a condensing one. An independent engine will actuate the air, circulating and feed pumps, taking water from Rock Bay for refrigerating purposes. The work of getting out the drawings and patterns is being rapidly proceeded with, and the engine will be ready in less than 90 days. The Albion Co. is also building a pair of winding engines for the V. C. Co. with cylinders 16 by 36 inches.

Back at His Post.

Mr. Joseph Dare, keeper of the Fisgard Island light, who was accidentally shot some weeks ago, has recovered sufficiently to return to his duty. Capt. Frank Waters, who has been in charge of the light, has accordingly returned to the city.

Prompt Payment.

The following resolution was passed at a meeting of the Commercial Travelers Association of Canada held in Toronto on the 31st ultimo: "That this association having learned with profound sorrow of the death of our late member, W. L. Cusack, desire to offer the widow of the deceased their heartfelt sympathy and sincere condolence. As an organization of mercantile men the association deplores the death of one who as member and director has been an example to our association of what may be accomplished by industry combined with honor and probity. These characteristics together with a kindly disposition Mr. Cusack possessed in a marked degree, and his name and memory will ever be held in high esteem and affectionate remembrance by his old commercial colleagues."

The foregoing resolution, together with a cheque for $1,000 was handed to Mrs. Cusack this morning by Mr. Ben Gordon, treasurer of the association in this city.

Only Ten Days More.

to the great half yearly drawing of Russell, McDonald & Co., opposite the Iron Church, Douglas street. Those that are wise will make their purchases before that date and secure tickets.

Obituary.

Mrs. John Brethour, of North Saanich, died this morning after an illness of three weeks. Mrs. Brethour was a native of Goodwood, Ont., and had been a resident of this province for 17 years. She leaves behind her a family of five children to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother.

For a Local Observatory.

A telegram from Oakland, California, says: Oregon C. Hastings, of Victoria, who has been visiting friends in Oakland, has contracted for an 8-inch telescope for his observatory in Victoria. Mr. Hastings, who is an ardent student of astronomy, has erected an observatory near his residence, on the highest point in Regent Park.

A Bad Job.

Last week laborers took up the sidewalk on the corner of Douglas and Courtenay streets to lay a drain from the Union Club house. When the sidewalk was replaced the job was done in a very slipshod way, and the footpath is now positively dangerous to walk over. The place should be looked after before broken limbs result.

Columbia and Kootenay Railway.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the Columbia and Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company, held at Vancouver on Saturday, the following were elected directors: H. Abbott, J. M. Browning and W. F. Salisbury. At a meeting of the directors, Mr. H. Abbott was elected president, Mr. J. M. Browning vice-president, and Mr. J. D. Townley secretary-treasurer.

A Fine Trout.

A party of legal and business gentlemen went out Saturday to Prospect Lake fishing, and met with good luck. One of the party, Mr. S. Perry Mills, captured a large trout, which tipped the scales at three pounds. Several other large ones were also killed, but not as large as the three-pounder. The cool weather is said to be good for fishing.

New Hearses.

There arrived down by the Islander last night two hearses, one white and the other black, both consigned to C. B. Lockhart of this city, who intends shortly to open an undertaking establishment. The hearses are from the well-known factory of C. B. Nash, London, Ont., which alone speaks for their first class appearance and finish. The white one is mounted with brass rails and is said to be the finest of the kind in Canada.

Election Tactics.

The intimidating process of getting votes seems to have been carried out to perfection in Esquimalt district. Mrs. Tyler, wife of a well-known voter in that district, who himself is too unwell to come to town, called at the TIMES office to-day and gave some information as to how the Government candidates won their election. When Mr. Helgesen came out he was promised strong support in all parts of the district. Mr. Mesher, of Victoria, then went through the country and told the settlers they would not get a cent spent in the district if they voted for him. Men who have lived in the Province for thirty years were never threatened like this before, and would like to know what the country is coming to when voters can be coerced in this way. When some of the settlers remonstrated with Mr. Mesher he said that was the way they did it in England.

The Elections.

Vancouver News: Not only is the decadence of the Government's strength shown by the reduction in the number of its supporters in the House. It is also manifested by the smaller number of votes that its supporters polled. A striking illustration of this important change in the sentiments of the voters to the present administration is seen in the case of the Premier himself. In 1886 Mr. Robson was returned at the head of the poll by a considerable majority over the second successful candidate. He was then simply Provincial Secretary. Now he is Premier and has been returned by two constituencies, one the large and important District of New Westminster, and the other the pocket borough of Cariboo. Yet in the first named constituency he has only succeeded in getting the second place on the list, while in Cariboo he has only managed to get in as the third member. Nothing, we think, can show more conclusively that the star of Mr. Robson's Government on the voters throughout the Province is rapidly weakening. While it is thus showing unexpected signs of decay internally, the outward forces hostile to it are growing stronger, and appear to be likely to engulf it, perhaps before the close of the next session. Until now there has been really no opposition worthy of the name, and the Government has been able practically to do as it pleased. With judicious management, moderation adopted in the policy towards its opponents and fair and equitable treatment of its supporters, the Government might have gained such confidence during the last session as would have enabled it to come before the people with the recommendation of past services as a claim for a renewal of popular support at the polls. Instead of this sagacious and prudent course, the Government relied too much on the absence of any constitutional check to its power in the Legislature through the impotency of the Opposition passed many measures, some of which were inimical to the general interests of the Province, while others laid a burden on certain classes or industries for the benefit of other parties. The result has been a growing feeling of dissatisfaction, which finds expression in the return of representatives as the Legislature pledged to do their best to bring about a different state of things.

FROM THE WEST COAST.

The Sealer Venture Returns—No Indian Hunters to be Had.

The sealing schooner Venture, Capt. McLeod, arrived in port yesterday from the west coast, where she has been for some weeks trying to get a crew of Indians, but was unable to procure them, and had to return to Victoria. She brought 72 casks of oil around as freight.

The Capt. of the Venture has been unfortunate in being unable to get a crew, but at the prices demanded by the Indians it is almost as well to do without them as it to let a vessel go into some other trade. The Indians want $4.50 per skin for all seals taken, and besides this demand a bonus of $300 for their head man; $30 is also wanted for the use of each canoe and two sacks of flour must be provided. At this rate of payment it is almost prohibition to go sealing, as the profits of the business would be eaten up by wages.

No news of importance was brought down by the Venture, all the white sealers having gone from Euclet for some time. The schooners Lilly L. and Adele had a great deal of trouble getting a crew, but succeeded in procuring six canoes.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; frequent hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Nominations Put In—Voting to be Held To-Morrow.

Nominations for school trustees in the three wards were made to-day, and as more than one was nominated for each ward, a poll will take place to-morrow. Below are the candidates:

JOHNSON STREET WARD.—W. H. Burkholder and Richard Hall.

YATES STREET WARD.—Dr. Richard Morrison and Walter Walker.

JAMES BAY WARD.—Col. R. Wolfenden, C. E. Mallette and Thos. McConnan.

TO BE DESTROYED.

The Old Hulks in James Bay to be Burnt and Destroyed.

To-day the wrecking steamer Whitelaw was busy at the old hulks which have been so long on the beach at James Bay. The two hulks, the Otter and the Mary Taylor, are of old fashioned build and much copper was used in their construction. Knowing this Capt. Whitelaw bought them with the idea of burning them to get the metal out, and to-day made a start on the job.

The hulks will be pumped out and floated onto some shelving beach at high water, and then at low tide burned that the bolts, etc., can be easily got at. The removal of the unsightly hulks is a matter for congratulation as they were anything but ornamental, lying as they did in full view of boats entering the harbor.

Charlie B. Lockhart, formerly of Hastie & Lockhart, has returned from the east. He has ordered a large stock of furniture in the east, which will arrive in a few days, also two hearses for his undertaking department, which will be by far the most costly in the Province.

NAUTICAL NOTES.

Items of Interest Along the Water Front—General Marine News.

Steamer Empire is at the Nanaimo wharf.

Tides have been very low the past day or two.

The steamers Princess Louise and Premier are to go into Esquimalt dry dock just as soon as it can be got ready.

The Star yard is overhauling and renovating its ways, taking advantage of the exceptionally low tides to do so.

The old Wilson G. Hunt's boiler is being broken up, and the last traces of the once favorite steamer are fast disappearing.

The steam scow Mascotte, whose injured boiler has been made right by the Albion Iron Works, will go to sea in about a week.

The P. & A. S. S. Co.'s steamer Edith will leave the end of the week for Seattle to go on her route, repairs being nearly completed.

A Narrow Escape.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, while returning to Nanaimo from a visit to Comox capsized their boat in Lambert Channell, near Hornby Island. Fortunately the accident was observed by the sons of Mr. Ford on Hornby Island, who bravely went to the rescue, and succeeded in saving the couple as they were about to sink.

The Single Tax.

For some time past Mr. Byron N. West has been asked by the single tax advocates of Vancouver, New Westminster and Ladner's Landing to visit those places and lecture on the single tax question. Complying with this request, Mr. West leaves to-morrow morning for the districts above named, and will deliver lectures on the subject of Single Tax.

Decoration Day.

The Knights of Pythias of Nanaimo decorated the graves of the deceased brethren on Sunday afternoon. Uniform Rank No. 1, headed by the Nanaimo band, marched to the cemetery and placed flowers on the graves. Appropriate services were held and the beautiful ceremony of the Knights of Pythias was carried out under the direction of Sir Knight Colonel Richardson and Sir Knight Captain Nash.

An Eventful Career.

The brig Mary Taylor, one of the old hulks that are being destroyed by the Whitelaw, has seen some pretty rough times, the last of which was some years ago when bound out from Port Townsend with a load of lumber. The stout brig was near Cape Flattery when a heavy squall struck and dismasted her. She was towed into Victoria where she has laid ever since. The captain's wife and family were aboard at the time, and the deck load which crashed through the cabin struck the lady, killing her instantly. The captain's child was also lost, but the rest of the crew succeeded in reaching shore.

MORE OF THEO'S INDECENCY.

As Attorney-General He Interferes with the Counting of Ballots.

The following from the Nanaimo Free Press will serve to show the Attorney-General's usual disregard for decency in the efforts of the Government to defeat Mr. C. C. McKenzie by any means be they fair or foul.

At 1.30 this afternoon, Mr. J. P. Planta, returning officer; Messrs. J. W. Stirtan and T. D. Jones, deputies; and Mr. E. M. Yarwood, election clerk, proceeded to Wellington, to make what is called under the act, the final count for Nanaimo district.

Mr. Theo. Davie, attorney-general, asked to be sworn in as agent for Dr. Walkem, to watch the count in Walkem's interests.

Mr. C. C. McKenzie objected on the ground, that as a member of the Government, Mr. Davie had no right to take part in the counting of the votes.

Mr. Davie said if any objections were made to his acting as agent, he would withdraw the application, which was done.

After the count which gave Forster 161 votes, McKenzie 157 votes and Walkem 154 votes. Dr. Walkem gave notice that he would contest the election on the ground of the rejection of alleged spoilt ballots, and on the ground that certain names were illegitimately on the voters' list.

This closed the proceedings and the most closely contested election ever held in Nanaimo, except in regard to the appeal.

CITY POLICE COURT.

(Before Hon. A. N. Richards, Q. C., P. M.)

The city police court clerk did a banking business this morning. The Chinese gamblers, who all pleaded guilty, contributed $220 to the city treasury, and four drunks reluctantly enlarged the amount to $240.

James Bruce did not appear to answer to the charge of beating his wife, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Jas. Dunn, charged with robbing Jas. Thompson, a very old man, of $40, pleaded not guilty. The prosecutor swore that on Friday afternoon Dunn came to his cabin twice, each time being put out by him. The second time Dunn came in he grabbed the witness by the arms and took a purse containing $40 out of his pocket.

There being no evidence against the prisoner he was discharged.
